Excerpt: . . . fices will be heading the State review. I have with me today Jim Donohue who is the chief of my antitrust section. Mr. Donohue together with his partner from New York will be the ones working with, at this point, 23 other State attorneys general in looking at the State perspective. There is no State in which this new merger will have a bigger impact than Pennsylvania. That is why we have taken the lead and that is why our participation is so important. Quite frequently, in merger reviews like this, although we work in partnership--and we will be looking at some of the impact, looking at some of the local data to determine the local impact--Justice will be looking at some of the international impact. We work together but we are not necessarily bound by the same conclusions. So that even though the United States Justice Department and the Federal Department of Transportation could give their blessing to this merger, that does not preclude us from State powers if we disagree with the conclusion from going to the courts to try to get either additional concessions or to attempt to stop a merger based on popular authority that I hold on behalf of people of Pennsylvania. There are, I think, a couple of questions that are important here. Obviously the presence of two of the three major US Air hubs being in Pennsylvania is very significant. And you know hubs provide great benefits for air travelers; there is no question about that. The ability to travel to a wide variety of destinations nonstop from Pittsburgh and Philadelphia across the Nation and now Philadelphia...
