As a young girl in Seattle, Joan Badalian grew up without a moral compass, and yet she struggled to live a moral life. She came from a poor foundation of faith, which made it hard for her to stay on that narrow path that leads to eternal life. When she left home and became a Flight Attendant based in Chicago, her faith was challenged over and over. The 60s were turbulent, with chaos and riots and so many marches and assassinations, such as Martin Luther King Jr. and Robert Kennedy. Through all the confusion, she still found a way to pull herself up and continue that struggle, to find Christ in her life. As her faith grew, she learned how to listen to the Holy Spirit, who speaks prophetically in many ways, even foretelling the births of her two sons, Michael and Gregory. This is a very intriguing story of building faith from nothing.
